

Blanketeers help local children

Project Linus is a national non-profit whose mission is to offer a sense of security, love and comfort to area children experiencing illness, crisis, homelessness or other needs. We do this with the help of caring volunteers who make new, handmade blankets that we deliver to them.

Over 77,000
blankets
donated and delivered to greater Boston
area children
since 2001!

Project Linus

Donating blankets made with caring and love is what we do. Whether you quilt, crochet, knit, or can create fleece-tied blankets (kid and teen friendly), we need your help. We also partner with corporations, schools and other organizations interested in group service projects. Visit our web site for free patterns, easy-to-follow videos and blanket guidelines to get started today!

Simply drop off finished blankets locally at Marblehead Knits, or visit our web site for additional drop off locations. Don't forget to include your name and email address with your donations so we can thank you and keep in touch.

Thank you for making a difference in the lives of local children!
